

We only have commercial radio and an NPR station, and little to no local news on the radio.

Clear Channel dominates the stations and the need for local voices to have a forum is greater than ever. Even the local NPR - WXEL - does not provide much more than classical music. It is a terrible public station in that it could offer more programming like in other cities.

We need more local alternatives to the mass marketed commercial stations.